H. G. SMOOT. shrewdest politicians and most popular gentlemen in Northeastern Kentucky. The life of Col. John Smith Hurt has been an exciting and eventful one. He is a handsome man, standing full six feet high, fine figure, black hair and eyes and with a cast of countenance denoting great determination of character. He was born in Montgomery county, Ky., on the 21st of May, 1828. His mother was a Virginian by birth, and his father a South Carolinian, who died when Col. Hurt was only four years of age. His education was obtained in the country log school house which he attended during the winter months and working on the farm in the summer. His first teacher was Perry Williams, a brother of Senator John S. Williams. He afterward attended the academy in Mt. Sterling for one year, and then removed to Owingsville. On account of failing health he was advised and did go to a sulphur spring in Fleming county, where he taught school in order to defray his expenses. The Mexican war breaking out in the spring of 1846, he joined a company of volunteers raised in Bath county by Capt. Fletcher. Learning that this company could not be received, and finding that two of his brothers had volunteered in Capt. Turpin's company of Montgomery. he-joined that company. This company was attached to the Second Kentucky, Col. McKee and Lieutenant Colonel Clay commanding. He was at and took an active part in the battle of Buena Vista. After the close of this war he returned to Owingsville and began the study of law under F. Rand, now of Indianapolis, and completed his studies with the late Hon. A. Trumbo. Like thousands of other brave and adventurous spirits, when the California gold fever broke out in 1859, with thirteen men and three wagons he crossed the plains and arrived at Coloma, then Suter's Mill, on the 29th day of August of the same year, only thirty wagons having crossed in advance. He left Suter's Mill in a few days and went to Placerville, then called Hangtown, and commenced his mining operations. He was present and participated in a public meeting that passed the first mining laws of California. He also participated in the election of the first California Legislature. As a matter of unwritten history it may prove of interest to know how the expenses of this Legislature were defrayed Foreigners, and especially Chinemen, were in the habit of coming to the mining regions, make a big find and depart for their homes with the dust. A law was passed taxing this class $5 each per month, and sheriffs elected especially to collect this tax. The fund thus arising went to pay those early Calfornia legislators. He was second in command of a body of miners that attacked and drove from the country a body of 400 raiding Indians. This Col Hurt facetiously terms the second war in which he had participated. After this he engaged in the lucrative business of selling mining supplies, which he hauled in wagons from Sacramento City to Placer-ville, a distance of sixty miles. This busiwas broken up by the ravages of the cholera in 1850, and he returned to Owingsville, where he resumed the practice of law. He was elected County Attorney in 1851 and and re-elected in 1854, although he was a Whig and the county was Democratic by at least 1850 majority. When the Whig party drifted into Know-nothingism in 1855, not believing that a man should be proscribed from holning office because of his religion or place of birth, he joined the Democratic party, and has been with it eversince. When the civil war broke out in the spring of 1861, he raised a company to support the State Guards, stationed at the Olympian Springs on the 29th of September, 1861, when he immediately began recruiting a regiment, which was afterward known as the Twenty-fourth Kentucky Infantry. After recruiting about 400 men at this place he was joined by Col. Grigsby with one company, and arms and provisions were furnished the men by the ordinance and quartermaster's departments at Frankfort. He then held the rank of Major. This force was attached to that under command of Gen. Nelson and participated in the Piketon expedition. He was appointed by Nelson commander of the Light Battallion, composed of five companies, which formed the advance until Prestonburg was reached. This battalion and the Thirty-third Ohio, under command of the late Gen. Sill, were detached to pass up John's creek to Piketon which they did and captured that place before Nelson's arrival, he having been detained by a skirmish at Ivv mountain. Gen. Nelson then ordered the then uncompleted Twenty-fourth Kentucky back to the Olympian Springs to finish re-cruiting. They were then mustered into the military service of Kentucky for one year and ordered immediately to Lexington. Having but seven companies, the organization was here completed by the addition of three companies—one from Laurel, one from Rockcastle and one from Clay county. On the 31st of January, 1862, the regiment was mustered into the service of the United States and ordered to Louisville, and from there to Bardstown. Here they joined the regular army of Kentucky under Gen. Buell and were attached to Wagner's brigade of Gen. Wood's division. He was at the battles of Shiloh and Perryville, after which he was attached to the 23rd army crops, Col. Grigsby having resigned his commission, he was commissioned colonel by Gen. Robinson. governor of Kentucky, and continued in command until mustered out of the service at Covington, Ky., in January, 1865. His regiment was at the siege of Knoxville, and was in Gen. Woodford's division, which was stationed on the south side of the Holston river and occupied a gorge, in front of Woodford's command, within 600 yards of a Confederate battery of twelve pieces, and confronted by McLaw's division of Longstreet's corps. The regiment endured the fire of this battery for four hours, and repulsed a Confederate force sent to capture it. During the heaviest fire of the battery, the regiment, misunderstanding orders, stampeded from the position and commenced a wild retreat to the rear. At this moment of apparent disaster, Col. Hnrt seized the colors of the regiment and rallied the men, who re-occupied the position. After this siege, the regiment joined Gen. Sherman's command, near Chattanooga, in his advice on Atlanta. At the battle of Resacca, on the 14th of May, 1864, Gen. Manson being wounded, Col. Hurt, being the senior Colonel, assumed command of the brigade, composed of 1,700 men. In the advance on the Confederate works he succeeded in capturing and holding the first line, but was prevented from advancing further by Gen. Judah's division having been driven back on his right. In this engagement his brigade lost 592 men ont of 1,700 and his horse was shot under him, as was the case his Lieutenant Colonel, North. Col. Hnrt's regiment was engaged in the battles around Atlanta and at the close of the seige, when Sherman's command advanced on the Macon road, by which Hood received supplies, Hart's brigade was in the advance of that whole force, and the skirmishers which he detached, under command of Lieutenant-Colonel North, of the Twenty-fourth Kentucky, were the first troops that struck the road at Rough-and Ready, and he immediately ordered the cutting of the wires connecting Hardee's corps at Jonesboro at Hood's force in Atlanta. The brigade was engaged in the battle of Jonesboro, and after this battle Hood evacuated Atlanta and joined Hardee. After Sherman occupied Atlanta, the

THE Hartford Times says: Grover Cleveland, Mayor of Buffalo and Democratic candidate for Governor of New York, is not a prophet without honor in his own country. The following Buffalo dailies support his candidacy: Courier, Democrat, Republic, Express, Freie Presse, News, Telegraph and Volksfreund. The only daily which supports Folger is the Commercial Advertiser, conducted by an Administration official. Of the dailies which support Cleveland, three are classed as Democratic, three Republican and two as independent. Only one weekly of any account has hoisted the Folger flag, and all the others being for Cleveland. It is quite remarkable that every German paper in the city, irrespective of politics, is as a "lone horseman" on a bicycle as far as Cheyenne, (1,400 miles), on a trip to supporting the Democratic nominee.

Twenty-fourth Kentucky was ordered back to Covington preparatory to being mustered out of the service, which they were on January 31, 1865. While stationed at Covington the Presidential election of 1864 came off, Lincoln and McClellan being the

He voted for McClellan, together with the most of his men, and succeeded in carrying the Fifth, the only ward carried by McClellan in the city. In June, 1865, he was nominated for congress by the conservative or Democratic party of the ninth district of Kentucky, and made the race against Samuel McKee, but on account of the existence of the expatriation law and the presence of soldiers at the voting precincts he was defeated, although he carried McKee's and his own native county by 400 majority, Mason by 300 majority and also carried Bath and Fleming counties. Believing that the war should end in fact as well as in name, during that campaign he argued the repeal of all expatriation laws so that all citizens of Kentucky should be placed on the same footing. The fruits of this good work were made evident when the next Legislature assembled. In 1868 he voted for Seymour against Grant, but in 1872, the Democrats having failed to nominate a man, and Greely and Grant both being Republicans nominated by Republican conventions, and believing that the Democratic party had abandoned their standard, he preferred, on personal grounds, to support Grant who had shown such liberal terms at the surrender of Lee at Appointation to Greely, who had written and said so much to engender hate between the north and south. In 1876 he voted for Tilden against Haves and then believed and still believes that Tilden was lawfully elected President of the United States and that it was an outrage on the election franchise of the country that he should by fraud have been deprived of his seat. In 1880 he voted for Hancock against Garfield. He has held no office since his race with McKee. Although not a candidate, Bath county since instructed her delegates to vote for him for congress at the Vanceburg congressional convention, but he would not allow the use of his name against Judge Phister, who was nominated and elected. In the Appelate convention of 1879, he survived all other candidates except Hargis and Reid, Bath county voting for him till the

Such is the man who will be elected to congress from the ninth congressional district of Kentucky in November by a majority of 2,500 votes against any man whom the Republicans may nominate at Catlettsburg, Tuesday.

A Woman Who is to Wear Trousers.

San Francisco Chronicle: Yesterday the Social Science Sisterhood, of which Sister Stow is president, held its second annual conference. Sister Stow hastened to announce that she would wear trousers on the 1st of January. She said: "I shall tory indeed. Three or four years ago I prowear the trousers in public. I called on cured a bottle of your agent, and with it, cired the chief of police, and told him of my intention, and asked him if I could count on the protection of the force, but like a man he refused it. But I defy the police, and I horse of lameness caused by a spavin. Last season my horse became very lame and I turned him out for a few weeks when he became better, but when I put him on the road he grew worse, when I discovered that a ringbone was forming. I call them trousers because the bunch he found.

Respectfully yours.

P. N. GRANGER. I don't like the word pantaloon, nor what it means. Pantaloon is from two words signifying 'to cover the heel,' and as man's heel is anything but a handsome object, he's welcome to it. Mine, my trousers, not my heels, are made with a pleat, and descend just to the line of beauty in the calf of the leg, just where the dresses of girls come; and if young girls wear their dresses there, why should not old girls adopt the fashion?"

"We had such a delightful time at the beach!" exclaimed the first as they took seats in the car.

"Did you gain any health?" asked the

"No, I can't say as I did." "Do the children feel better;"

"Perhaps not."

"Did your husband get rid of his cough?"

"Oh, no." "Then, to sum the whole think up, did you really gain anything by going?' "Certainly we did. My husband made friends with a man from Iowa and got him to sign a note with him for $4,000. I should say we did gain !"-Wall Street News.

Perseverance Will Tell.

STROUGHTON, MASS., March 16, 1880. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—In justice to you and myself, I think I ought to let you know that I have removed two bone spavins with 'Kendall's Spavin Cure,' one very large one, don't know how long the spavin had been there. I have owned the horse eight months. It took me four months to take the large one off and two for the small one. I have used ten bottles. The horse is entirely well, not at all stiff, and no bunch to be seen or felt. This is a wonderful medicine. It is a new thing here, but if it does for all what it has done for me its will be very great.

Respectfully yours, Chas. E. Parker.

KENDALL'S SPAVIN CURE is sure in its effects, mild in its action as it does not blister, yet it is penetraling and powerful to reach a every deep seated pain or to remove any bony growth or other enlargement, such as spavins, splints, curbs, cailous, sprains, swellings, any lameness and all enlargements of the joints or limbs, or rheumatism in man and for any purpose for which a liniment is used for man or beast.
